

Advising Tuesday Tune-up Quiz

Jan. 21, 2020

Directions: While you are eating, introduce yourself to someone near you, and share one of your best or most unique advising experiences. Then, talk through some of the questions below. Make a few notes regarding where you would look for resources to answer these questions, and add notes in the “answers” column. We will be talking about resources today, so hopefully you will feel even more equipped to answer the questions at the end of our time together.

	Question	Office/Resources to find answer	Answer
1	What is the single most important question you can ask your advisees when they come to their advising/registration appointment?
2	Advising season only happens once every 6 months and advisees can pop in at unexpected times. Are there organizational structures that can help me?
3	My advisee came to their advising appointment unprepared. Are there resources for giving expectations to my advisees?
4	Advising loads in our department have increased. How can we adapt our advising model to meet these needs & provide quality advising?
5	My advisee is a military student with some complicated scheduling issues. Is there anyone they can talk to?
6	If a student earned a 'C' in every class, would they graduate?
7	A senior advisee couldn't get into a "C" course, so they plan to wait until their last semester to take it. Is this a good idea?
8	An incoming student has a question about Inquiry Seminar & if their transfer courses will fulfill this requirement.
9	An advisee is thinking about changing their major. How do they do this and where can they find resources?
10	What degree evaluation tools are available for students? Is there help available online, for reading degree evaluations?
11	Registration starts tomorrow, so I want to make sure I have cleared all of my advisees. Where can I check this out?
